1. Things That Went Well

Every member of the team contributed actively.

Group meeting efficiency improved, we were able to get more work done in less group work meetings. The lessons learnt from the previous Sprint Retro were implemented very carefully.

Meetings were conducted efficiently with great participation.

Efficient participation in the group meetings was shown. Each member was ready to do the work assigned and deliverables were met accordingly.

Every member didn't show any sign to take any short cuts and work assigned was delivered on time.

2. Things That Could Have Gone Better

Communication between the team could have been a bit better, and usage of tools like Jira to keep track of tasks could have been done a bit more actively.

3. Things That Surprised Us

Product instructions were sometimes ambiguous and unclear.

Group cohesion was better than expected.

Setting up DevOps and RDS instances took more time than expected.

4. Lessons Learned

Sprint Planning should've given more attention to deliver without going through any attention.

Making sure to use tools like Jira and other Agile tools which can make our job easier

5. Final Thoughts

Things to keep :

Enthusiasm, group communication and the work ethic of the team

We should remain our communication tool (Teams) for next assignments as they are useful. We should keep our team work and working spirit always strong to face more difficulties in next sprints.

Things to change :

Communication and usage of Jira for task tracking
